

Comprehensive Bibliography Of The Second Amendment In Law Reviews

By David B. Kopel

This article lists articles about the Second Amendment or gun control that have been published in law reviews. David B. Kopel is an adjunct professor law at New York University School of Law, and Editor-in-Chief of the Journal on Firearms and Public Policy.

This bibliography contains only law journals. It does not include bar association journals and the like. An html version of this bibliography, which will be updated from time to time, is available at <http://i2i.org/suptdocs/crime/bibliography.htm>. The html bibliography will contain links to online versions of many articles.

If the law school affiliation is not clear from the journal's name, a parenthetical explains the journal's home.

Articles labeled "Comment", "Note", "Casenote" and the like are written by the student editors of the law journals. In the past, some journals did not publish the names of student authors, or published only initials.

Full-text Internet versions of many of the articles listed here can be found at the websites for the Journal on Firearms and Public Policy (<http://www.saf.org/journal.html>); The Second Amendment Law Library (<http://www.2ndlawlib.org>); and at the Independence Institute <http://i2i.org/crimjust.htm> and <http://i2i.org/waco.htm>.

Some of the most important of these articles can be found in Robert Cottrol, editor, Gun Control and the Constitution (N.Y.: Garland Press), which is available in a 3-volume set, and in a shorter one-volume paperback.
